SOCIOLOGICAL THEORY

Its Nature and Growth

by NICHOLAS S. TIMASHEFF, Fordham University

... an excellent summary of sociological theory for a one semester course.

—Rev. Paul Marx, O.S.B., St. John's University, Minnesota

Second Edition; 346 pages; $5.50 text

SOCIETY

An Introduction to Sociology

by ELY CHINYOY, Smith College

It is no surprise to note the clear codification of sociological principles in Chinoy's SOCIETY for his SOCIOLOGICAL PERSPECTIVE has on many occasions been a light in the darkness to both graduate and undergraduate students. . .

—Sister Mary Aquinice Kelly, O.P., Rosary College

430 pages; 21 tables; 6 figures; 14 photographs; $6.95 text

THE SOCIOLOGY OF CITIES

by JOHN SIRJAMAKI, State University of New York at Buffalo

This book has a style of clarity and vividness in presenting the complex subject matter of urban community; above all, it has fresh insights into the urban community as an institutional system not found in other texts.

—C. K. Yang, University of Pittsburgh

1964; 342 pages; 13 tables; 4 figures; $5.25 text

Forthcoming . . .

POPULATION DYNAMICS

Causes and Consequences of World Demographic Change

by RALPH THOMLINSON, California State College at Los Angeles

Stressing the three pervasive variables of birth, death, and migration, this important new textbook surveys the history of world population, and analyzes its characteristics and distribution as well as the major causes and consequences of changes in population size.

Winter 1964; 540 pages; $7.50 text

GROUND BREAKING BOOKS FROM SHEED AND WARD

THE ACADEMIC MAN IN THE CATHOLIC COLLEGE

By JOHN D. DONOVAN, Ph.D., Boston College. 238pp. $6.00

When the pros and cons of Catholic education are debated, the teacher is often the forgotten man—or, at least, the unknown factor. Although the Catholic college must ultimately stand or fall on the quality of its teachers, we know surprisingly little about them—who they are, where they come from, or how they estimate their responsibility. To fill this gap, Professor Donovan has undertaken the first study in depth of the Catholic academic man.

"A portrait of the Catholic professoriat which is indeed far from flattering . . . essentially correct . . . Donovan's study can stand as a baseline for measuring the progress of the Catholic academics toward excellence and as a useful spur in that direction." Peter H. Rossi, Director, National Opinion Research Center.

RELIGION AND CAREER

By ANDREW GREELEY, Ph.D., 267pp. $5.00

"Father Greeley has often complained that the Catholic spokesmen who confessed publicly to the intellectual incompetence of the American Catholics were 'unencumbered with data.' He has amply protected himself against this charge in the present sociological study of college graduates.

"After making the proper scientific cautions, qualifications and disclaimers, he states the basic conclusion of his own study: There is virtually no evidence to be found in the present investigation to support the notion that American Catholics or American Catholic schools are anti-intellectual or anti-scientific." Father Greeley's dissipation of the 'myths' has supplied the firm scholarly foundation upon which further research can be built." Joseph H. Fichter, S.J.

THE CHALLENGE TO CHANGE: The Church Confronts the Future

By FRANCOIS HOUTART. 209pp. $4.50

An internationally known sociologist squarely faces the issues implicit in Schema 17: On the nature of the Church. He vividly catalogs the reasons why the Church must change and brilliantly describes a possible direction for the Church of tomorrow.

"Mgr. Houtart, sociological adviser to Cardinal Suenens, argues with all the force and erudition that he can muster. His case is remarkably persuasive . . . an impressive synthesis on the popular level of the problems the Church faces." Rev. Andrew M. Greeley

CHRISTIAN WISDOM AND CHRISTIAN FORMATION

Edited by J. BARRY MCGANNON, S.J. 305pp. $6.00

A hard look at the core of Catholic higher education: the philosophy and theology curriculum. After critical examinations of how and why these subjects are taught today, the contributors suggest new, more effective ways to make theology and philosophy a truly dynamic center of Catholic education.

SOCIETY:

ITS ORGANIZATION AND OPERATION

By W. A. ANDERSON and FREDERICK B. PARKER

Foreword by WILBERT E. MOORE

This new, introductory textbook in sociology is a comprehensive study of how our societies are organized, how they operate, and the consequence of that organization and operation. The authors use comparative material throughout the book, and enliven the presentation with historical and literary reference.

The text's primary emphasis is upon a systematic frame of reference, which shows that societies are composed of five major classes of interrelated human relationship structures: ecological entities, groups, institutions, organizations, and collectivities. To understand the functioning of societies through these structures, the authors have considered eight major areas of analysis: natural and cultural environment, socialization, social integration, social interaction, social differentiation, social change, and social control. illus., 464 pp., $7.95

JUVENILE DELINQUENCY IN MODERN SOCIETY, 3RD ED.

By MARTIN H. NEUMEYER

Extensively revised, this edition brings the analysis and description of the problem of juvenile delinquency in a changing contemporary society abreast of current research. Professor Neumeyer has added a more precise statement of the theoretical frame of reference, detailed reports of current research, a new chapter on theories of crime and delinquency causation, and new sections to many of the other chapters. 424 pp., $6.50
